The collections at the Clay County Museum provide an outstanding basis for explaining our local history. One item in that collection which recently has gained attention throughout the county is the 1936 Buffalo fire truck. The truck has been in a number of parades this summer and seems to turn heads whenever it goes out on a journey. In the last newsletter issue, an article described the renovation of the truck and its engine. The Society has contributed a substantial amount of funds to make the truck operable. In addition, many volunteer hours have been contributed. The truck is providing a great learning opportunity for local residents.

With its use, however, maintenance costs have also increased. The engine runs great, but items such as wiring, a storage tarp, and the brake system are current items which are needs. The Board of Directors have agreed that a separate maintenance fund shall be established to help pay for these costs. Your contributions to this fund are needed! Watch for the fireman’s donation hat at county events or send your contribution directly to CCHS.

A open house featuring the fire truck will be held on Sunday, Oct. 16 from 2 to 5 p.m. (Presentation at 3 p.m.) at the Heritage Hjemkomst Interpretive Center’s parking lot. I encourage all of you to attend and celebrate with us a grand part of the museum’s collection.

Genealogical Terms

LINEAL means ascending or descending in a direct line; COLLATERAL means descended from the same ancestor but not in a direct line of descent; ALLIED families are families which are usually related through marriage. An ANCESTRY begins with a single individual and traces back in time to include the male and female line of that person’s ancestors. A GENEALOGY begins with a single ancestor and traces forward in time to include all descendants to the present. (From No. Central IL Gen. Soc. Newsletter, March, 1994)

History-mystery words and their meanings.

Can You Use a Poultice for Nostalgia?

By Pam Burkhardt

catarrh, la grippe/grippe: Catarrh is an inflammation of any of the body's mucus membranes, but usually referring to those of the nose. La grippe, or just grippe, is a catarrhal disease resembling influenza. La grippe and grippe are not to be confused with.

grip: Example: He packed his grip and left. Explanation: Grip [in reference to a handle] was an informal term for small suitcase.

fomentation, liniment, ointment/salve: These are all external treatments. A fomentation is made from water to which medicine or herbs have been steeped. A cloth is soaked in this mixture, wrung out and placed on the afflicted part of the body. Liniment is an oily liquid meant to be rubbed on an afflicted area. Ointment or salve has a butter-like consistency and is also meant to be rubbed on. However, a word on butter - just because butter has the consistency of an ointment doesn't mean it is a medication and should not be used as a remedy!

poultice/plaster: More external treatments. A poultice is a moist, paste-like mixture spread on a cloth and placed on an inflamed or otherwise afflicted part of the body. It is usually heated before application and is replaced before it cools. A plaster is like a poultice with a thicker consistency.

tonic, palliative, anodyne, cathartic: These liquids are all internal medications. A tonic is supposed to increase strength in the [body's] system. A palliative relieves pain. An anodyne relieves pain and promotes sleep. A cathartic is a laxative.

mortification, nostalgia: Mortification refers to gangrene. Nostalgia was the medical term for homesickness!

Other medical terms you might run into:

quinsy: tonsillitis
lumbago: rheumatism or pain in the lower back apoplexy: stroke
dyspepsia: indigestion
dropsy: an abnormal accumulation of fluid in the body croup: an ailment affecting the throat which is marked by a heavy cough and difficult breathing

[p Note: Many of the above receipts/recipes (see last month's issue) and medical definitions were taken from The People's Home Library published in 1917. We do not recommend the use of any of them.

More history-mystery words will appear in future issues.

Dr. Hammond's Tar Expectorant.

THE GREAT CONSUMPTION CURE.

More cases of Consumption have been cured by the timely use of Dr. Hammond's Tar Expectorant than by all other remedies combined.

For the cure of Colds, Coughs, Croup, Influenza, Bronchitis, Quinsy, Laryngitis, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Night Sweats, Cough and for the immediate relief of Consumptive patients.

DR. HAMMOND'S TAR EXPECTORANT is the most wonderful remedy ever offered to the public. It wonderfully increases the power and flexibility of the voice, strengthens the lungs, alleviates pulmonary irritation and affords the most efficient relief for Whooping Cough and even for Consumption in its advanced stages. It is especially beneficial in those diseases which are too often regarded as simply annoying, such as common colds and coughs, but which are really dangerous in their tendency and demand prompt and active treatment. For the more serious forms of Throat and Lung Troubles its value can not be overestimated to anyone worn out with constant coughing and loss of sleep.

DR. HAMMOND'S TAR EXPECTORANT is a blessing, as it gives immediate relief, and sweet rest follows. WE GUARANTEE that every case of pulmonary disease, not already beyond the reach of human aid, can be relieved and cured by being promptly treated with Dr. Hammond's Tar Expectorant. DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.

Keep a bottle always in the house and use it promptly whenever the first symptoms of a cough show itself. Both suffering and money will be saved. PRICE WAS NEVER SO LOW BEFORE. It is retailed at 70¢ per bottle when sold by dealers.

The North Dakota Retriever Club

While driving around Clay County our staff members sometimes come across places or things that pique our interest. Usually there’s a story behind it; sometimes it’s an interesting one. One such place is along Highway 10 between Dilworth and Glyndon. Just east of the South Branch of the Buffalo River is the home of the North Dakota Retriever Club. Ok, so what’s the NORTH DAKOTA Retriever Club doing eight miles inside Minnesota? Well, the answer concerns the needs of steam engines, a crowded railroad and Clay County’s youngest town.

After the Northern Pacific Railroad crossed the Red River into Dakota Territory in 1872, they established Fargo as a division point. Early steam powered locomotives had to be serviced and filled with water and coal about every 100 miles. At division points, the locomotives were driven into a round house, serviced and then turned around on a turn table to pull another train back the other direction. Other area division points included Staples, Minnesota (100 miles east) and Jamestown, North Dakota (100 miles west).

The NP built Fargo’s roundhouse and carshops just west of 16th Street, then nearly a mile west of downtown. They sat on the eastern bank of Long Lake, a narrow, north-south-lying water-filled slough. Water for the steam locomotives, power plant and other needs was readily available there. However, the site had other problems. Hemmed in by the lake on one side and encroaching development on the other,

The NP built Fargo’s roundhouse and carshops just west of 16th Street, then nearly a mile west of downtown. They sat on the eastern bank of Long Lake, a narrow, north-south-lying water-filled slough. Water for the steam locomotives, power plant and other needs was readily available there. However, the site had other problems. Hemmed in by the lake on one side and encroaching development on the other, the NP had little room to expand its facilities. In 1906 the railroad decided to move their division point out of Fargo to a tiny siding east of Moorhead named Dilworth. The new village grew to several hundred almost overnight. Today, it’s the second largest city in Clay County.

(Long Lake has long since been drained. It’s now Cass County Drain Number 3 and runs through several Fargo city parks. The Fargo roundhouse still stands on 1st Avenue North and Classic Roadsters occupies the NP’s old car repair shops on Main Avenue.)

Faced with a pressing need for water at the new Dilworth site, the NP planned to dig a 2000 by 600 foot reservoir just west of the South Branch of the Buffalo River, fill it with river water and pipe the water the 2 1/2 miles into town.

All these changes occurred during a major Northern Pacific building campaign through this part of Minnesota. Other projects included laying a second set of tracks from Staples to Buffalo, North Dakota and building the Stockwood Fill - the high railroad grade east of Glyndon. The fill serves as a ramp to ease trains up over the beaches of ancient Glacial Lake Agassiz. To raise the grade, the NP built an amazing 4 3/4 mile long wooden trestle and dumped dirt from its top to create the fill, burying the trestle in the process. The Stockwood Fill taught the railroad engineers some bitter lessons about the problems of building large, in Clay County??

heavy objects on our soft, unstable, former lake bottom soil. Parts of the trestle sank in pockets of water-saturated sand hidden below the top soil. The fill itself sank from its own weight squishing up the ground on either side.

The NP faced similar problems at their man-made lake (named the Gantz Reservoir for a nearby railroad leaky lake, connected it with the new reservoir via pipes running under the river and installed pumps, a water tower and a water softening plant on the site. NP locomotives chuffed along using water from the reservoirs as late as the 1950s when the railroad switched to diesel engines.

Meanwhile, over in North Dakota, hunting enthusiasts searched for a place to train and test their dogs. In the 1930s some local retriever owners, most from Fargo, began meeting at a slough near Harwood and a railroad reservoir near Magnolia, North Dakota, 10 miles west of Casselton. Eventually, they incorporated with the state of North Dakota as the North Dakota Retriever Club and began holding American Kennel Club licensed field trials for pure-bred dogs.

The AKC field trials tested the dog's behavior and ability to find and retrieve both upland game and Newspaper accounts indicate that the railroad planned to line the Gantz Reservoir with concrete to plug the leak. In the mean time, the water-desperate railroad dug wells and a second 600 by 2000 foot lake on the east side of the river. This hole proved more successful. By 1909 the railroad had plugged their siding). Heavy steam shovels sank in the soft, clay bottom. Workers found a long, narrow layer of water-saturated sand running across the east end of the reservoir. River water pumped into the lake ran out through this layer as quickly as it was pumped in. Like a bucket with a hole in its side, the reservoir wouldn't hold water above the sand layer.

The North Dakota Retriever Club has been a fixture along Clay County's Highway 10 for 45 years. CCHS Photo water fowl. The Harwood and Magnolia locations provided both the prairie and pond habitats required for the trials but members wished for a site closer to home.

Fall Tour to Historic Fort Snelling and Sibley House set for Thursday, Oct. 20

Clay County Historical Society and Otter Tail County Historical Society in Fergus Falls are co-sponsoring a tour to Historic Fort Snelling and the Sibley House on Thursday, Oct. 20.

Fort Snelling, begun in 1819 and completed in 1825, is situated on the confluence of the Minnesota and Mississippi Rivers. The site provided a vantage point for overseeing travel and commerce in the early days of the Minnesota Territory. Today's Fort depicts frontier life in about 1827.

The Sibley House was built in 1835 by Henry Hastings Sibley, a prominent fur trader with the Dakota and Ojibway Indian Tribes. Sibley later became a Territorial Delegate to Congress and eventually the first Governor of the State of Minnesota.

The Sibley House, with a large collection of 19th century Dakota and Ojibway artifacts was first preserved in 1910. Since that time the Minnesota Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) have kept the house open to the public.

For more information and/or to make reservations call CCHS at 233-4604.

ND Retriever Club

In the mid-1940s the club began renting pasture land along Highway 10, east of the South Branch of the Buffalo River from Glyndon farmer August Fischer. The railroad leased them the use of the adjacent Gantz Reservoir. The site proved ideal. In 1949, club members contributed money and bought Fischer's land. They retained their North Dakota incorporation and name and simply moved their sign to the new Clay County home.

Moorhead member John Hall and others replaced the old railroad car which had served as a clubhouse with the facility presently on the site. The club has been quite active. In the late 1940s, Moorhead member Cliff Overvold's golden retriever Royal Peter Golden Boy gained a national reputation for field trial performances. In 1967 the club bought another Clay County property, a slough just east of Glyndon's Riverside Cemetery. Today the club has about 85 or 90 members and holds trials two or three times a year. Almost all of the dogs now are Labrador retrievers.

The railroad no longer needs the Gantz Reservoir water for steam locomotives. The once leaky west reservoir is now dry and choked with trees, but on the east pond, lovingly trained dogs will be tracking downed pheasants and ducks for years to come.

The rosemaling design to the right was done by Karen Myran of Hawley for CCHS's newest promotional tool, a wonderful bookmark. The Scandinavian design, donated by Ms. Myran, is reproduced in deep blue on powder blue stock.

The message on the back defines both its immediate purpose and the long-term goal of the promotional piece. Ask for your complimentary bookmark at the CCHS Museum and Archives.
1936 Buffalo fire truck featured at Oct. 16 CCHS Open House.

Check out the 1936 Buffalo fire truck at Clay County Historical Society Fall Open House on Sunday, Oct. 16 from 2 to 5 p.m. The Buffalo, considered a Cadillac of fire trucks, will be on display in the parking lot of the Hjemkomst Center, 202 1st Ave. N., Moorhead. County Commissioner and CCHS Board Member Diane Meyer will make a special presentation of the truck at 3 p.m. Two Moorhead firemen, Gerry Shawstad and Mike Sigdestad, will be recognized for their outstanding dedication to the preservation of the truck.

Inside the museum there will be a special display of fire related artifacts in addition to the permanent exhibits and a new temporary exhibit "Drawing With Light" Photography in Clay County. This exhibit examines how people have used light and chemistry to produce pictures for the last 150 years. Featured are old photographic processes, our earliest Clay County photograph and the virtual reality of the 1890s stereoscopes.

Refreshments will be served. Stop in, view the fire truck and exhibits and have a bite to eat. If you aren’t already a member of CCHS, consider joining the historical society or asking a friend to join. Your membership in CCHS is an inexpensive and easy way to put your own mark on history. By joining CCHS for just $15 a year you can help us preserve Clay County’s heritage for future generations. We look forward to seeing you on October 16.

On October 14, 1936, a photo of the brand new Moorhead Fire Department Buffalo "pumper" appeared in the Fargo Forum. (See the July/August CCHS Newsletter.) Less than two weeks later the Buffalo fought a major fire at 5th Street and Center Avenue. (See photo above.) Evanson Grocery and Moorhead Hardware were gutted by the fire, but firemen managed to save the adjacent stores, Neubarth’s Jewelry and the L. Milo Matson Fur Store.

According to the Moorhead Daily News a "number of amateur photographers and numerous motion picture machines" were in evidence at the fire scene. If anyone has any knowledge of these photos/movies CCHS would appreciate seeing them. Give us a call at 233-4604.
